

CHRIS LOMAX, B.M. '05, J.D. '08
Founder and Managing Attorney, Lomax Legal

Chris Lomax is a proud two-time graduate of the University of Miami. Chris earned his bachelor's degree in music business and entertainment industries and graduated with honors from the School of Law. During his undergraduate years, he was an active member of United Black Students, B.O.N.D., and Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, Inc. In law school, Chris was a member of the Black Law Students Association, International and Comparative Law Review, Trial Team, Moot Court Board, and the Center for Ethics and Public Service. In 2008 he was inducted into the Iron Arrow Honor Society.

Chris began his career with the Civil Rights Division of the United States Department of Justice over a decade ago, and soon established a stellar reputation for taking on and winning complex, difficult cases in jurisdictions across the nation. He investigated and successfully prosecuted law enforcement officers who violated people's constitutional rights and individuals who committed hate crimes and human trafficking offenses. Before long, Chris was handling high-profile cases of national importance, tirelessly pursuing and securing justice on behalf of the American people.

Following his tenure with the Department of Justice, Chris made the strategic decision to accept a clerkship with Chief Judge Carl E. Stewart of the United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit. As a federal appellate law clerk, Chris was immersed in a rigorous intellectual experience that provided him an invaluable opportunity to sharpen his skills as a uniquely versatile advocate. This additional training catapulted him to the next phase of his career, where he focused his practice on complex civil litigation at Jones Day, a prestigious law firm that consistently ranks as one of the top 10 in the world. His work at Jones Day included representing Fortune 500 corporations in high-stakes complex litigation and white-collar investigations, and earning the trust of clients across industries.

Chris is founder and managing attorney at Lomax Legal in Coral Gables. In addition to his full-time legal practice, he serves on the teaching faculty for Harvard Law School's Trial Advocacy Workshop and as an adjunct professor at the University of Miami School of Law.
