

Humberto Reboredo

Head of Tax & Tax Policy
Stripe

Humberto Reboredo is a global finance executive with a distinguished track record in financial strategy, fiscal governance, and the navigation of complex international regulatory environments. Currently, as the Head of Tax & Tax Policy at Stripe, he directs the global tax function and leads strategic engagement with policymakers to define the future of the digital economy. Throughout his career, he has interacted extensively with corporate boards on matters of global risk, financial reporting, and tax transparency.

A qualified financial expert with over two decades of experience in the global banking sector, Humberto possesses deep proficiency in financial oversight and capital markets. His banking tenure includes senior leadership roles at Morgan Stanley—where he served as Managing Director and CFO of the Institutional Securities Group and as Global Head of Tax—and Credit Suisse. He began his professional career as an attorney at Cravath, Swaine & Moore LLP, focusing on complex M&A and high-stakes corporate transactions.

Humberto is a member of the Latino Corporate Directors Association (LCDA) and a graduate of the LCDA's Board Ready Institute, reflecting his commitment to excellence in corporate governance. He is also a dedicated institutional steward, having served for over a decade on the President's Council at the University of Miami and as a former member of the Alumni Association Board of Directors. By bridging the precision of elite legal practice with the scale of global investment banking and the agility of fintech, he offers boards a sophisticated perspective on driving growth within increasingly intricate global markets.